ABSTRACT

This document begins with a report describing a Northampton Community College project to develop a manual to help adult literacy providers understand how they fit into welfare reform. The accompanying manual consists of four sections corresponding to the project's four objectives. Section 1, intended to enable adult literacy providers to understand the welfare system, covers the following: welfare reform legislation, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, funding sources for welfare reform programs, and Human Resource Investment Council. Section 2 contains an inventory for administrators to assess their programs in order to understand how an adult literacy provider can be a significant participant in the welfare reform arena. Section 3 assists adult literacy providers in connecting with other providers by stating the rationale for collaboration and providing an administrator's self-assessment collaboration questionnaire and model collaborative effort. Section 4 is designed to help providers develop new curriculum models that integrate basic skills with the requirements of welfare reform. It includes the following: rationale for basic skills; entry-level job/skill requirements table; sample syllabi, course outlines, and student competency checklists; list of vendors of pertinent work force materials; and community resources. Appendixes include the following: outline of Act 35, state welfare legislation; model welfare-to-work programs; comparison of educational welfare-to-work programs; list of providers; and transparency masters on collaboration. The manual contains 11 references, 4 website addresses, 9 resource persons, and a glossary of acronyms. (YLB)

C) ABSTRACT

Grant Recipient:

Northampton Community College 3835 Green Pond Rd. Bethlehem, PA 18020 (610) 861-5427

Program Name:

Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers

Grant Allocation:

$5,000

Project Period:

July 1, 1997 - June 30, 1998

Project Director:

Dr. Manual Gonzalez

Project Purpose:

Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers proposed to assist programs in understanding how adult literacy providers fit into welfare-to-work programs and to serve as a resource to assist providers to connect with other providers and funding sources.

Project Outcomes:

The manual enabled adult literacy providers to understand welfare reform, explained how an adult literacy provider can be a significant participant in the welfare reform arena, assisted adult literacy providers to connect with other providers and collaborate their efforts, and developed new curriculum models that integrate basic skills with the requirements of welfare reform.

Impact:

This project includes a clear synopsis of current welfare reform changes. In addition, this project reflects how educational programming has to adapt to these changes. Included in this manual Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers are tables which indicate entry level job/skill requirements, sample course syllabi, student competency checklists, and a complete list of vendors who publish current workforce materials. The goals in the original proposal for the grant were accomplished. The goals were: 1) to assist agencies to develop new models that integrate basic skills instruction with the requirements of welfare reform initiatives, and 2) to assist agencies on how to document and evaluate the effectiveness of their program of instruction through the collection of data on the delivery of the instruction in light of welfare reform requirements.

Product or Training Developed:

The product which is a result of this 353 Project was a manual entitled Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers. Included in this manual are 1) a summary of current welfare reform educational requirements, 2) how adult literacy providers can participate in the welfare reform arena, 3) how adult literacy providers can collaborate their efforts, and 4) new curriculum models that integrate basic skills with the requirements of welfare reform.

Products Available From:

The manual Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers is available from:

The Department of Adult Basic and Literacy Education, 333 Market St, Harrisburg, PA 17126-0333

Product Continuation and/or Future Implications:

This manual will continue to serve as a practical guide to adult literacy providers enabling the providers to understand current as well as future welfare reform requirements in relation to educational programming. The information contained in this comprehensive manual will be applicable to future changes in welfare reform educational requirements because the format addresses primarily general concerns that are adaptable to future changes as the needs of the welfare clientele are addressed.

Conclusions/Recommendations:

Adult literacy providers need to be aware of current welfare reform requirements and how these changes effect educational programming. Providers should be adaptable and flexible when planning future educational programs, be aware of additional funding sources, and be willing to collaborate efforts with other community services.

E. BODY OF REPORT

1) Statement of the Problem:

Adult basic education and literacy programs in Pennsylvania across the Commonwealth have felt the effects of federal welfare reform after March 3 of 1997. Many programs in the Commonwealth have clients that are on public assistance which includes: cash, food stamps, and medical assistance. All providers have been affected, those who have welfare clients and those who do not, in terms of available funding and the finite pool of students. Programs that are willing to enter into cooperative efforts and with other providers who are not literacy providers and are flexible in their program development will have an advantage when adult education funds are dispersed. Program administrators and staff should be aware of welfare reform, at the federal and state levels, in order to plan for change proactively. Making sense of the changes is not an easy task. The manual, Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers will assist programs in understanding how adult literacy providers fit into welfare to work programs and will continue to serve as a resource to assist providers to connect with other providers and funding sources.

2. Goals and Objectives:

The goals and objectives of Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers were:

1) To enable adult literacy providers to understand welfare reform.

In order for adult literacy providers to accommodate the educational requirements for welfare recipients, a thorough understanding of the changes within the welfare system in absolutely essential.

2) To understand how an adult literacy provider can be a significant participant in the welfare reform arena.

Before an adult literacy provider can establish educational programs that address the current welfare legislative changes, one must take an inventory of existing programs to assess if they adequately can address the needs of future requirement determined by welfare changes.

3) To assist adult literacy providers to connect with other providers and collaborate their efforts.

Education is typically only one element in a package of programs and services needed by welfare recipients. This manual will demonstrate how the implementation of collaboration with several agencies meets the needs of the welfare recipient.

4) To develop new curriculum models that integrate basic skills with the requirements of welfare reform.

Research suggested that combining work experience with upgraded basic skills, job development, and job readiness training will lead toward employment.

3. Procedures

The goals and objectives of this project are stated in the section of the final report immediately preceding the procedures section. After the goals and objectives were determined, the writers developed each objective in a comprehensive manner. Under each of the four objectives listed is information which directly explains each objective.

- 1) To enable adult literacy providers to understand welfare reform.
 - A) Welfare reform legislation
 - B) TANF/Act 35

- C) Funding Sources for Welfare Reform Legislation
- D) Human Resources Investment Council
- 2) To understand how an adult literacy provider can be a significant participant in the welfare reform arena.
 - A) Inventory for Administrators of Adult Literacy Programs
 - B) Current adult literacy programs that fit into welfare reform
 - C) List of Providers
- 3) To assist adult literacy providers to connect with other providers and collaborate their efforts.
 - A) Collaboration defined
 - B) Rationale for collaboration
 - C) Will Collaboration Work For You?
 - D) A Model Collaborative Effort
- 4) To develop new curriculum models that integrate basic skills with the requirements of welfare reform.
 - A) Rationale for inclusion of basic skills into welfare-to-work programs
 - B) Entry Level Job/Skill Requirements Table
 - C) Sample Syllabi and Course Outline and Competency Checklists
 - D) Vendors
 - E) Community Resources

4. Objectives Met:

Based on the objectives as stated in the grant written by Dr. Manuel Gonzalez and the four specific objectives listed in the final product, all objectives have been stated and met in the manual entitled Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers.

The general objective of this project was to produce a manual Welfare-to-Work: A Comprehensive Manual for Adult Literacy Providers and this objective was accomplished. The four specific objectives of this project have been fully developed within the contents of the manual and therefore these objectives have been accomplished also.

- 1) To enable adult literacy providers to understand welfare reform.
 - A. Welfare reform legislation a synopsis of Pennsylvania Act 35
 - B. Temporary assistance for needy families (TANF/Act 35)
 - C. Funding Sources for Welfare Reform Programs
 - D. Human Resource Investment Council
- 2) To understand how an adult literacy provider can be a significant participant in the welfare reform arena.

A. An inventory for administrators of adult literacy programs - this inventory was developed as a result of interviewing several directors of current programs affected by welfare change. The purpose of this inventory is a self-assessment for literacy providers to assess the objectives of their program in light of welfare reform.

B. Current adult literacy programs that fit into welfare reform.

C. List of Providers

3) To assist adult literacy providers to connect with other providers and collaborate their efforts.

A. Collaboration defined - a thorough understanding of the definition and importance of collaboration is given.

B. Rationale for collaboration - research indicating the necessity for collaboration is included in this section.

C. Will collaboration work for you? - a self-assessment for adult literacy providers to help determine whether or not collaboration is an effective or plausible approach to successful programming.

D. A model collaborative effort - based on current Northampton

Community College programs and possible future links in the community, a model visual presentation of collaboration was devised in order to demonstrate the complexity of this concept.

4) To develop new curriculum models that integrate basic skills with the requirements of welfare reform.

A. Rationale for inclusion of basic skills into a welfare to work program - research supporting the inclusion of basic skills suggests that the better a person is prepared in basic skills the more likely it is that he will stay off welfare.

B. Entry level job/skill requirement table - in order to determine exactly what basic skills were necessary for a job recipient to perform adequately on the job managers of various companies were questioned as to what expectations they would have for entry level positions within their companies.

C. Sample syllabi and course outline and competency checklist - the two syllabi included in this section of the manual reflect job specific requirements necessary to perform front office responsibilities in a medical office. These syllabi reflect the following information:

- 1. course description
- 2. course outline
- 3. outcomes and objectives
- 4. course activities
- 5. course materials
- 6. evaluation

D. Vendors - a thorough review of current companies that publish work related materials has been included in the manual.

E. Community resources - a guide enabling a literacy provider with a variety of community resources and contacts has been developed in the manual

5. Objectives Not Met - not applicable

6. Evaluation

Dr. Manuel A. Gonzalez, Director of Adult Literacy at Northampton Community

College and the two writers/researchers were primarily responsible for the evaluation of this project. The internal evaluation of this project was accomplished by continual contact and discussions between Dr. Gonzalez and the writers. Dr. Gonzalez was readily available to discuss the progress and to suggest any changes that needed to be made. A team of coordinators and instructors from Northampton Community College's Adult Literacy

Department thoroughly reviewed the first draft with the writers and suggestions (additions, deletions) were considered and appropriate changes were made. The final copy was then reviewed again by the same committee for final approval.

7. Dissemination of Product

The following resource centers will be responsible for the dissemination of the final product:

PURPOSE OF THIS MANUAL

⇒ 1.	To enable adult literacy providers to understand welfare reform.
⇒ 2.	To understand how an adult literacy provider can be a significant participant in the welfare reform arena.
⇒ 3.	To assist adult literacy providers to connect with other providers and collaborate their efforts.
⇒ 4.	To develop new curriculum models that integrate basic skills with the requirements of welfare reform.

SECTION ONE

To enable adult literacy providers to understand welfare reform.

In order for adult literacy providers to accommodate the educational requirements for welfare recipients, a thorough understanding of the changes within the welfare system is absolutely essential.

- ⇒ A) Welfare Reform Legislation
- ⇒ B) Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF/Act 35)
- ⇒ C) Funding Sources for Welfare Reform Programs
- ⇒ D) Human Resource Investment Council

A. WELFARE REFORM LEGISLATION

A synopsis of Pennsylvania Act 35

Welfare as our country has known it will never be the same. A lifetime of assistance is no longer an option. How will the reforms affect welfare recipients?

- Adults can receive a welfare check for a total of 5 years, or 60 months in a lifetime.
- Every recipient has certain hourly requirements ranging from 20 to 30 hours a week in order to maintain eligibility for cash assistance. Adults not working are required to complete an independent 8 week job search or a Job Search Workshop which hopefully will result in either full or part-time employment.
- Between 1997 and 2002, there will be changes in both the amount of time required for work and the definition of work. In terms of time, in 1997 and 1998, a recipient must work at least 20 hours for work to count towards the state's work requirement. In 1999, this increases to 25 hours per week, and from 2000-2002, recipients must work 30 hours per week
- In order to continue receiving a welfare check after two years and if no work has been found, individuals will be required to do community service, on-the-job training, workfare, or another "approved activity."
- For a maximum of 12 months, a recipient can also use general and vocational education, English-as-a-second language, or job skills training to meet their work requirement.
 Recipients can continue their educational activities past 12 months as long as they meet their hourly requirement.
- Recipients and their caseworkers must sign an Agreement of Mutual Responsibility (AMR) that will outline the recipients plan to achieve self-sufficiency.

A question one must ask is how will these welfare reform changes impact adult education class enrollment? Welfare reform will limit the amount of time training would be available to clients and the kind of training that would be acceptable for clients. This, in turn, will impact adult education programs who count welfare recipients among their students. According to Mr. David Florey of the Department of Public Welfare (DPW), "It is important to understand the context, constraints, and pressures which both federal and state legislation, including the Fair Employment Standards Act and Act 35, have put upon us as it explains what otherwise might be described as irrational behavior." He explained that Act 35, which established the welfare reforms, specifies that persons applying for entry onto welfare roles must participate in an eight-week job-search program. "This," he stated, "is probably the reason why many of your (adult education) programs are underenrolled."

More information is available on the Internet at: http://www.welfareinfo.org/which is the website for the Welfare Information Network.

B. TANF /ACT 35

This information was collected from conversations with local CAO caseworkers and Department of Public Welfare Program Monitors.

Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF); Federal Welfare Reform Legislation

- 1. 25 hours per week of an approved work activity required by 10/1/98.
- 2. 30 hours per week of an approved work activity by 3/1/99.

Act 35 (Pennsylvania Welfare Reform Legislation) 3/3/97

- 1. During initial 24 months on cash assistance (after 3/3/97) 12 months of training is possible, but only after client completes 8 week job prep/search program.
- 2. A client can be in a 20 hour per week approved work activity. However, starting 10/1/98, a person involved in a 20 hour per week approved work activity will not count towards Pennsylvania's client participation rate and will result in a reduction in Pennsylvania's block grant.
- 3. Pennsylvania welfare cases, where two people are identified in the same household, have different hour requirements. These cases must have one participant in an approved work activity 35 hours per week, and if both people are participating, there must be a total of 55 hours per week.
- 4. Single Point of Contact (SPOC) clients have different hourly requirements, and have different activities that count as an approved work activity.

Approved work activities differ between TANF and Act 35. Hourly participation rates differ between TANF and Act 35. Different welfare reform programs in Pennsylvania (SPOC v. non-SPOC) vary in hourly requirements and approved activities. Providers must be aware of both sets of regulations, how they differ, and which set of regulations to defer to when dealing with clients. An outline of Act 35 - Welfare Reform Legislation 5/23/96-OPD can be found in the APPENDIX.

C. FUNDING SOURCES FOR WELFARE REFORM PROGRAMS

On August 22, 1996 President Clinton signed the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (PRWORA) -"his pledge to end welfare as we know it." The key principles are:

- Welfare reform should help move people from welfare to work.
- Welfare should be a short-term transitional experience not a way of life.
- Parents should receive the child care and the health care they need to protect their children as they move from welfare to work.

In 1996 in order to meet these objectives, the federal government created the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) block grant. TANF will provide $16.4 billion each year from 1997-2003.

In 1997, Congress authorized a new program of welfare-to-work grants. These grants amend TANF, but they are considered a separate program. The Department of Labor has the responsibility of administering the two year welfare-to-work programs. Three billion dollars was allocated to welfare-to-work grants for 1998-2000. Though the two programs are distinct, they have one common goal: MOVE THE INDIVIDUAL INTO EMPLOYMENT and KEEP THEM THERE! More information is available on the Internet at http://wtw.doleta.gov

To summarize:

Federal Welfare Funding

TĀ	NF	Welfare	to-Work
16.4 billion	fiscal year:	3 billion	fiscal year:
	1997-2003		1998-2000
all eligible	duration:	targets:	duration:
participants	6 years	hardest to serve	2 years

29

Funding for the welfare to work grants will be distributed as:

- 1. Block grants to states which will give states the flexibility to design TANF programs and develop their own strategies for achieving program goals.
- 2. According to a memorandum to Adult Basic and Literacy Education (ABLE) program providers dated Jan. 26, 1998 from Cheryl Keenan, Director of ABLE, adult education and literacy programs are eligible to apply in conjunction with a Private Industry Council (PIC) or local government.

Guidelines for these competitive grants were issued by the federal government's Department of Labor (DOL) in January 1998. Contact your local and state officials on the development of Pennsylvania's plan in order for your agency to become part of the program.

According to the Department of Labor Welfare-to-Work Office, the National Institute for Literacy (NIL) states that grants can be used for the following purposes:

- creating and subsidizing jobs for welfare recipients
- on the job training
- job placement
- support services that help people keep jobs
- contracts with public providers of job readiness, job placement, and post-employment services
- community service and work experience

Refer to Appendix for pamphlet entitled Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Inventory of State Funding for Adult Basic and Literacy Education Programs.

D. HUMAN RESOURCE INVESTMENT COUNCIL

The Human Resource Investment Council (HRIC) is the advisory board that Governor Ridge formed to enhance job training in Pennsylvania. HRIC is under the umbrella of Team Pennsylvania, which is a job-retention/job-creation initiative that includes business calling programs, a business resource network, export network, and a board of employers who will help attract job relocation and expansions in Pennsylvania.

This board forms a unique partnership between industry, workers, and the government which will encourage integration of job-training and educational programs. The goal of HRIC will be to provide Pennsylvania workers access to job-training programs within a user-friendly framework. During the first year, ten one-stop centers will be formed which will be a customer-friendly approach to training and career development.

Act 42 created an interagency coordinating council to move the delivery of adult basic education forward. Act 42 defines literacy as an individual's ability to read, write, and speak English, compute and solve problems at levels of proficiency necessary to function on the job and in society in order to achieve one's goals and develop one's knowledge and potential. An "eligible" adult is defined by Act 42 as 17 years of age, not enrolled in public or private secondary schools or post secondary schools. The council has as its mission - helping the Department of Education, Public Welfare, Labor and Industry, Commercial and Economic Development to coordinate a more comprehensive efficient delivery of literacy services.

SECTION TWO

To understand how an adult literacy provider can be a significant participant in the welfare reform arena.

Before an adult literacy provider can establish educational programs that address the current welfare legislative changes, one must take an inventory of existing programs to assess if they adequately can address the needs of future requirements determined by welfare changes. Following is a self-assessment of issues to consider before changing existing programs.

- ⇒ A) Inventory for Administrators of Adult Literacy Programs
- ⇒ B) Current adult literacy programs that fit into welfare reform

Before welfare reform came onto the horizon, many adult literacy programs were inundated with welfare clients. Providers traditionally created programs that met a few hours a week during the day to assist learners in receiving services. Some programs across the Commonwealth offered more hours per week, a few offering 20 hours a week of instruction. In the fall of 1997, many programs saw their numbers of students dwindle. Changes in program guidelines had to be made to reflect welfare requirements.

A comparison of existing welfare-to-work programs is included in the APPENDIX that follows Section Four of this manual.

- 1) Model Welfare-to-Work Programs
- 2) A Comparison of Current Educational Welfare-to-Work Programs
- ⇒ C) List of Providers

A list of program providers is included in the APPENDIX. This list includes information on program name, address, and contact person for each provider.

SECTION THREE

To assist adult literacy providers to connect with other providers and collaborate their efforts.

- ⇒ A) Collaboration Defined
- ⇒ B) Rationale for collaboration

Refer to the APPENDIX following Section Four of this manual for copies of transparencies used to display additional information regarding collaboration. The original transparencies were presented by Dr. David Manzo, Northampton Community College Program Coordinator, at the PAACE Mid-Winter Conference in Hershey, PA in February 1998.

- ⇒ C) Will Collaboration Work For You? (an administrator's self-assessment collaboration questionnaire)
- ⇒ D) A Model Collaborative Effort (flowchart)

A. COLLABORATION DEFINED

Collaboration, in terms of adult education, is when two or more organizations combine their resources in order to meet an educational goal over time. It is a political process because it requires competitors to work together to meet this educational goal.

The concept of collaboration has specific meaning and specific criteria. The criteria for collaboration includes: jointly designed and monitored programs, combined resources, and joint decision-making process. It must be a win-win situation for all parties involved.

The organization that is interested in a collaborative effort must do an internal audit or inventory for traits that would help the collaborative effort succeed. These traits include:

- 1. System openness (the organization must be willing to accept and value ideas from sources outside)
- 2. Trust and commitment from all level of the organization.
- 3. Boundary Spanners (individuals who can successfully interpret the values and goals of all collaborating organizations, and express those values and goals verbally, written, and informally.
- 4. Compatible organizational cultures (the collaborators must be similar enough so that information, personnel and resources can flow among organizations with little trouble).
- 5. Fiscal operations compatibility.
- 6. Compatible community needs (the organization must do an environmental scan in order to assure that duplication of effort is avoided, and that community needs are being met).

If, after the inventory is completed, and it is determined that collaboration is possible, it is then time to search out partners. The partner(s) could be a community-based organization, business/industry, or it could be a government entity. A good example of a collaborative effort is School-to-Work. This collaboration has schools, businesses, and JTPA (Job Training Partnership Act) agencies working together.

B. RATIONALE FOR COLLABORATION

Not just any literacy or education program will succeed in raising welfare recipients' literacy skills or improving their employment or economic prospects; therefore, assigning welfare recipients to existing adult basic education programs appears to have little measurable effect on raising their literacy proficiencies. Education is typically only one element in a package of programs and services needed by welfare recipients. According to David Manzo DEd., Northampton Community College (NCC), the issue of collaboration is, "in my belief, going to be the major factor that will separate successful and thriving providers from those who merely survive or perhaps do not survive. A current element of a successful program is the implementation of collaboration to meet the needs of the welfare recipient. Collaboration is the process where different agencies are willing to work together for a common goal." For collaboration to be successful, the agencies must be willing to:

- 1. give up ownership of the program
- 2. participate in joint decision making
- 3. be willing to share resources

According to Dr. David Manzo, this could be an exciting time because of all the new alliances that can be formed among providers and funding sources. Also, it can be an exciting time in terms of program design and delivery. Adult education program providers who are not flexible in program planning, in terms of collaborative efforts and instituting "world of work" components into existing literacy programs, will have to battle with those providers who are willing to meet the coming changes with their own creativity.

In the March issue of "What's the Buzz?", Mr. David Florey recommends every ABLE program develop working relationships with JTPA/Private Industry Councils and get on the Department of Public Welfare bidders list for mailings of information about new funding programs (717) 787-4592. Mr. Florey suggests "Contact your local welfare offices to make sure they know who you are, and what services you offer."

An institution that is willing to participate in a collaborative effort is Northampton Community College. Northampton Community College has sought funding from sources other than the traditional funding from the Department of Education. NCC has searched out funding from private industry councils, the Department of Labor and Industry, and the Department of Public Welfare. NCC has also searched out partners in industry to provide customized job training (CJT), and short term training programs.

Northampton Community College has begun to offer welfare-to-work programs that are funded through a collaborative effort between Pennsylvania's Welfare Department and Labor and Industry. These programs like: UpFront, Project Connect, and Rapid Attachment are eight weeks in duration, divided between job preparation (resume writing, interviewing skills, etc.) and job search (working with job developers). (see APPENDIX: A Comparison of Current Educational Programs)

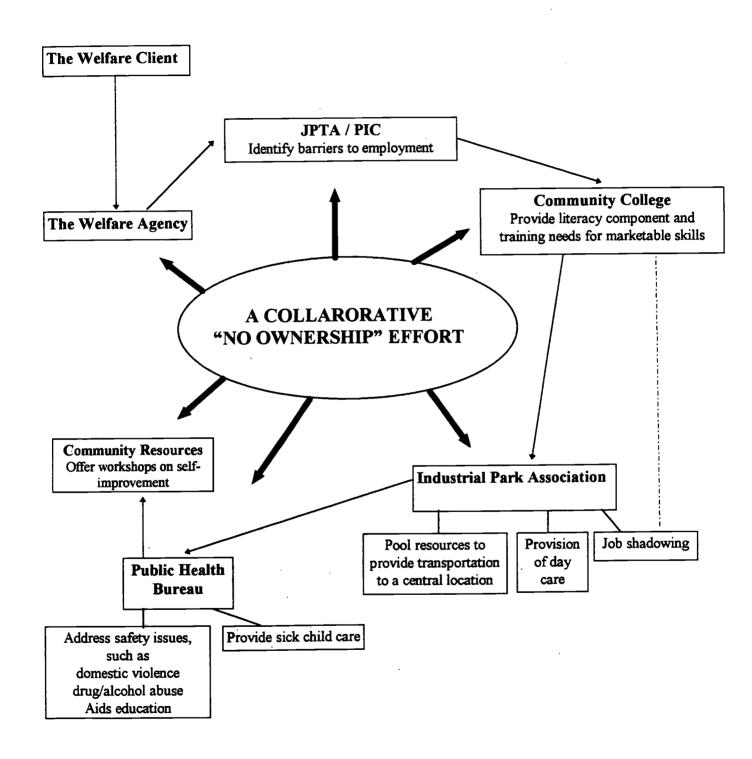

C. WILL COLLABORATION WORK FOR YOU?

⇒	1.	Do I fully understand the concept of collaboration?
⇒ :	2.	What kind of collaborative efforts can I pursue in order for welfare recipients to receive my agency's educational programs?
⇒ :	3.	What kind of program models will be acceptable to funding sources that combine training, education, and work?
⇒ ·	4.	How does my agency currently do business with other organizations?

D. A MODEL COLLABORATIVE EFFORT

SECTION FOUR

To develop new curriculum models that integrate basic skills with the requirements of welfare reform.

- \Rightarrow A) Rationale for inclusion of basic skills into welfare-to-work programs
- ⇒ B) Entry Level Job/Skill Requirements Table
- ⇒ C) Sample Syllabi and Course Outline and Student Competency Checklists
- ⇒ D) Vendors
- ⇒ E) Community Resources

A. RATIONALE FOR INCLUSION OF BASIC SKILLS INTO A WELFARE-TO-WORK PROGRAM.

According to an article published by the New York State Education Department, welfare recipients generally do not have the education or work readiness skills needed for long term success. The article suggests that statewide welfare programs enable educationally disadvantaged adults to obtain employment as quickly as possible and provide the necessary support services to keep and upgrade their employment. State and local policies should enable welfare recipients to pursue adult literacy, GED preparation, and other educational programs directly related to employment, including necessary support for training related expenses (child care and transportation). The New York State Education Department suggests adopting a broad definition of community service as an enriched work experience program that combines immediate labor market work experience with upgraded basic skills, GED preparation, English language instruction, employment strategies, job development, and or job readiness training leading toward employment.

Pennsylvania welfare-to-work programs originally did not provide a literacy component. However, in a revision of the initial plan, the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare has allowed program providers to provide four weeks of remedial education at the discretion of the program provider. According to the National Institute for Literacy, "One of the major underlying assumptions of the welfare to work program is "that a strong foundation of literacy and basic skills is critical to the successful transition to employment and self-sufficiency for AFDC parents-especially young parents." Studies suggest that the better a person is prepared with basic skills, the more likely he will stay off welfare.

When programs are tailored to the needs of participants, results are more encouraging. For example, participants in programs that linked basic skills instruction to occupational training or to other work experiences are more highly motivated to complete the program; furthermore, they "do achieve sizable gains in employment and earnings in future years."

In order to determine exactly what basic skills were necessary for a job recipient to perform adequately on the job, several managers of various companies were questioned as to what expectations they would have for entry level positions within their companies. A table summarizing the findings follows this rationale.

SPOC Medical Office Assistant Procedures SPOC Medical Office Assistant Microcomputers

The following two syllabi reflect the job specific requirements necessary to perform front-office responsibilities in a medical office. The skills indicated under the heading "clerical/office assistant" on the Entry Level Job/Skill Requirements table are an integral component of the medical office assistant and medical office microcomputer curriculum. Following each included syllabi are student competency checklists that correlate to the syllabi.

COURSE TITLE: SPOC Medical Office Assistant Procedures

I. COURSE DESCRIPTION:

The primary purpose of the SPOC Medical Office Assistant Procedures Program is to prepare students to enter the job market with medical office skills, that will enable them to perform front-office responsibilities adequately and effectively. The program exposes the students to a working knowledge of the medical assistant. Students are taught medical terminology through defining the basic principles of medical words, and are introduced to Anatomy and Physiology. Through role play, students understand the responsibilities of a medical office assistant and the importance of maintaining a professional environment.

Students are tutored in reading, writing, math skills, and job hunting techniques. Preparation for advancement and job hunting techniques are the final phases of the program. The development of positive work attitude is stressed throughout, and encouraged through a working environment. Consequently, depending upon individual skills at completion, students will be competent to enter the work force.

E. COMMUNITY RESOURCES

There are numerous profit and nonprofit organizations that provide training and education services around the nation. These organizations can provide education and training to welfare recipients through contract and referral arrangements with welfare agencies. Community colleges are a major source of adult education and vocational training. Check your local yellow pages under School, and look for subcategories such as Business and Secretarial, Industrial, Technical and Trade, Medical and Dental Assistants and Technicians, and Universities and Colleges. Agencies listed under Social Services Organization may also provide training and education services.

The Center for Humanistic Change located in Bath, Pennsylvania is an example of an agency which offers a variety of educational and training workshops which can be tailored to meet the needs of the workshop participants. Following is a list of topics that the Center for Humanistic Change offers that might be applicable to the welfare-to-work client to help insure successful employment. These topics could be incorporated in a welfare-to-work curriculum.

INVENTORY - OF- STATE FUNDING - FOR - ADULT BASIC - AND - LITERACY EDUCATION - PROGRAMS 1997 - 1998

ADULT LITERACY TASK FORCE

The Pennsylvania Business-Education Partnership (formerly Pennsylvania 2000) is a statewide coalition of business, education and government leaders working together to improve the quality of education in the Commonwealth. The Partnership's Adult Literacy Task Force focuses statewide attention on adult literacy to increase economic productivity and the ability of parents to help their children learn.

To guide its efforts, the Adult Literacy Task Force adopted the National Literacy Act definition of literacy as the ability to use information to function in society, to achieve one's goal, and to develop one's knowledge and potential.

This updated Inventory has been developed by the Task Force to provide information on funding for adult basic and literacy education programs. By having access to this information, we hope literacy service providers will have a better understanding of federal and state resources available through the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to support adult literacy programs.

Other publications of the Task Force include:

- Adult Literacy Gap Analysis and Guiding Principles
- ♦ Development of Calls to Action

SUMMARIES

Department of Education

The Adult Literacy Act supports more than 140 community and school based literacy and basic education programs. The program's state authorizing statute, Act 143 of 1986, establishes priorities for adults with low grade level attainment, particularly grades 0 to 4; for the economically disadvantaged; and for tutor training. The announcement of availability of funds and application procedures are disseminated each year in mid-winter and funding decisions are made in the spring before the start of the program year on July 1. For Program Year 1997-1998, $7,108,024 was allocated for the support of these programs. During Program Year 1996-1997, these funds were used to provide direct services to 18,237 adult students. An additional $1,000,000 Adult Literacy Act funds was allocated to the Department of Labor for support of SPOC literacy programs which provided adult literacy services to an additional 5,663 students (See Department of Public Welfare). Number of adults receiving literacy services during 1996-97: 18,327.

The Pennsylvania Literacy Corps is a state funded program designed to promote lifelong involvement in community service by providing college students the opportunity to work with an adult basic education or literacy agency as part of a college course which is focused on community social issues. The student performs 40 hours of service and receives training and practical experience which counts as credit for a portion of the college course. The grants are awarded on a competitive basis to support collaborative efforts between an adult basic education or literacy provider and a college or university. Twenty-one grants were awarded to support programs for Program Year 1997-1998. The application cycle for these grants starts in January each year with the announcement of the availability of funds. Number of adults receiving literacy services during 1996-97: 1,085.

The Adult Education Act is a federal adult basic education program which supports an array of activities to improve adult basic education and literacy. At present, more than 180 community and institutional agencies receive federal support through Adult Education Act grants. These agencies operate over 400 separate program activities. This federal act also provides for funds to support staff development activities and special research and demonstration projects such as the development of innovative practices. The announcement of the availability of funds and the application procedures are disseminated each year in mid-winter and funding decisions are made in the spring before the start of the program year on July 1. For Program Year 1997-98, $15,662,923 was allocated for the conduct and administration of programs. Number of adults receiving literacy services during 1996-97: 32,971.

The Even Start Family Literacy Program is a family-focused literacy program intended to improve the educational opportunities of the Nation's children and adults by integrating early childhood education and adult education for parents into a unified program. The goals of the program are to help parents become full partners in the education of their children; to assist children in reaching their full potential as learners; and to provide literacy instruction for their parents. All projects have some home-based instruction and provide for the joint participation of parents and children. An Even Start-funded project is required to collaborate with adult education programs serving similar populations. Even Start builds on existing community services, and, therefore, cannot duplicate services available in the community. Pennsylvania currently funds 22 projects: 18 Local Educational Agencies, 4 Community-Based Organization and operates within 63 school districts. The Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) supports adult and youth literacy activities that are designed to enhance the quality of the workforce and raise the productivity and competitiveness of the nation. JTPA literacy activities are always combined with job training and/or early work-maturity skills. Literacy activities may extend from two weeks to twelve months, and may include courses in reading, writing, mathematics and study-skills improvement. The JTPA programs recognize that illiteracy, limited reading and computational skills, and incomplete high school education are serious barriers to obtaining and retaining employment, participating in training, pursuing career advancement, and securing an increased level of earnings. JTPA literacy activities are designed to assist program participants overcome such employment barriers. They are targeted to economically disadvantaged individuals including single mothers, ex-offenders, long-term public assistance recipients, substance abusers, high school dropouts, and youth with no work history. Youth literacy activities are usually combined with summer employment and training activities and focus on critical thinking, decision-making, transferred learning techniques, and life skills.

For Program Year 1996, JTPA Title II-A, Adult Training Programs (ages 16-21) and Title II-C Youth Training Programs, enrolled a total of 3,515 individuals in basic (educational) training and remediation. During the summer of 1997, JTPA Title II-B Summer Youth Employment and Training Programs (ages 14-21) enrolled a total of 14,951 youth in basic (educational) training and remediation.

A component of the Road to Economic self-sufficiency through Employment and Training (RESET) is the placement of participants with literacy deficiencies in adult literacy/basic education classes. Through RESET, allowances such as day care and transportation may be provided through County Assistance offices to support literacy activities. Number of adults receiving auxiliary literacy services during 1996-97: 40,905

Under the sponsorship of the Single Point of Contact Programs (SPOC), a Literacy Demonstration Project began in 1991 to encourage the development of three model programs for the delivery of literacy training to welfare recipients: skills-specific, family, and computer-assisted literacy. Skills-specific literacy alters standard skills training curricula to include literacy education for clients with reading levels lower than the standard entrance requirements. Family literacy encourages clients to learn to read through the motivation of teaching their children to read. Parents and children work through the parallel curricula and get together for joint reading sessions each day. Computer-assisted literacy combines a variety of literacy software with life-skills curricula. This keeps clients' motivation high while simultaneously improving reading skills. Number of adults receiving literacy services during 1996-1997: 5,663

The Joint Jobs Initiative, comprised of the Single Point of Contact Program (SPOC), serves Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) mothers and other cash and food stamp recipients who are considered able bodied. Federal, State and Food Stamp Employment and Training funds are used to assist these clients to gain employment and became independent of the welfare system. Program components have included intensive literacy feeders, job-specific skills and other types of remedial literacy education. Number of adults receiving literacy services during 1996-97: 9,316

The Rapid Attachment to the Workforce programs are designed to rapidly place employable welfare clients in jobs. These programs combine eight weeks of job readiness/preparation activities with supervised job search in order to place as many clients as possible in employment. Unlike some of the other "quick attachment to work" programs, Rapid Attachment contractors may choose to provide an additional four week of remedial education to clients who are unlikely to be placed and retain employment without it.

The program is active in most counties of Pennsylvania. Individuals who are enrolled in the program must be eligible for AFDC, AFDC-U or General Assistance, be mandatory employment and training program participants and be job ready (high school diploma, GED or work history). Clients must retain employment for three months.

A new DPW job placement programs Community Solutions, will operate from January 1998 through December 2000. All three versions of this program; Innovations Demonstration, Local Collaboration and Employer-linked Job Placement, provide 12 months of work-related activities to TANF eligible clients to ensure that they obtain full-time employment which will lead to self-sufficiency. These activities include, but are not limited to the following: intensive job preparation and job search, basic life skills, intensive job coaching to ensure long-term retention, and education (ABE, GED, ESL and computer literacy) and limited education and vocational enhancement for those participants who need it. Clients must retain employment for 12 months.
